NEW CRITICISM STIRS BATTLE ON NEUTRALITY

Taft, Favoring Repeal of Arms
Ban, Hits 'Inadequacy' of Credit Restrictions.

PREDICT QUICK VICTORY

Administration Aides Claim
Passage of Legislation
Within 3 Weeks.

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Chairman Key Pittman, D., Nev., of the senate foreign relations committee declared today that the revised draft of the administration neutrality program would modify the existing ban and permit extension of credit to nations in default on their war debts to the United States.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Criticism of the administration neutrality bill came unexpectedly today from a few senators who have approved its basic principle—repeal of the arms embargo.

Sponsors of the measure were confident, however, that a majority of the senate favored it. They predicted that passage would come within three weeks after the start of debate Monday.

The senate foreign relations committee approved the legislation 16 to 7 yesterday, but arranged another meeting today to act finally on the wording of various amendments.

Besides carrying out President Roosevelt's recommendation that belligerents be permitted to purchase arms, munitions and implements of war in the United States,
major provisions of the bill would:

1. Limit credit to belligerent governments on all purchases in this country to 90 days. There would be no restriction on credits allowed to private citizens and companies of belligerent nations,
but the munitions control board would advise congress every six months regarding the nature and extent of these, and congress could restrict them if it deemed advisable.

2. Require belligerents to take title to all goods purchased in this country and carry them home
in their own or other non-American ships.

3. Permit the president to designate "combat areas" in which American citizens and ships could not travel.

Criticizes Restrictions.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio), a supporter of the embargo repeal, told reporters that the credit restrictions should apply to individuals residing in belligerent countries as well as to belligerent governments.

"Under this bill," he said,

$50 Pension Plan To Go On Ballot For Vote In Ohio

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The Big-
low old age pension plan, calling for $50 a month for every single person over 60 years and $40 a month for each member of a married couple, will be submitted to Ohio voters at the Nov. 7 election.

Secretary of State Earl Grit-tith today certified that petitions requesting that the pension plan be placed on the ballot contained enough valid signatures to put it before Ohio voters.

Opponents of the pension plan have charged that enactment of the Biglow proposal would bankrupt the state. The committee estimated the cost at $381,000,000
a year to start with and $560,000-000 a year by 1950. Biglow estimated the cost of operation at $56,000,000 a year.

Pension payments would be financed by a special 2 per cent tax on land exceeding $20,000 an acre in value and an income tax
of one-fourth the federal income tax.

U. S. INDICTS 2 EX-BANKERS FROM DISTRICT

Cites Mansfield, Loudonville
Men for Embezzlement and False Entry.

KNOLL STILL HELD IN JAIL

Mansfielder Accused of Taking
$1,200; Spreng Named on Three Counts.

A former Mansfield bank employee and an ex-Loudonville banker were among the three Ohioans indicted by a federal grand jury in Cleveland today on charges of embezzlement and false entry.

They are Clayton Knoll, 33,
former bookkeeper at the Citizens National Bank and Trust company, and Milton H. Spreng, 54, who resigned as vice president of the Farmers and Savings bank at Loudonville early this year.

Knoll has been held in the Cuyahoga county jail at Cleveland unable to furnish a $2,000 bond since his arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Charles Ball at Canton
Sept. 9, the same day he was arrested here by federal agents.

Indicted On 2 Charges.
He is charged in the indictment with taking $1,000 of the firm's funds on Aug. 1, 1938 and $200 last June.

Employed at the bank since 1927,
Knoll resigned July 5, officials said. They said that discrepancies in his accounts were discovered
following his resignation.

Spreng, who disappeared after he left the bank, gave himself up to federal agents and was arraigned in Cleveland Aug. 8 before U. S. Commissioner D. B.
Nicola. He was released on $2-500 bond.

The indictments charge him with embezzling $57.50 in March 1938, $100 in October, 1938, and $18.98
in March, 1937.

Disappeared Feb. 18.

Spreng disappeared from Loudonville on Feb. 18. His automobile was recovered 10 days later in Dayton. In March he was recognized on a Chicago street by Austin C. Rhoads, a friend of the family, who was there on business.

Believed to be suffering from amnesia, Spreng was brought back to Mansfield by Rhoads.

The jury also indicted Clyde A.
Beese, Akron, former teller at the Firststone Park Trust and Savings bank, on charges of embezzling $65 in October, 1938, and $500 in November, 1936.

SOLON 'RESTS'

Ashbrook in Naval Hospital,
Aid Denies He Had Stroke.

Representative William A. Ash-brook, congressman from the 17th
Ohio district of which Mansfield is a part, was in the Naval hospital in Washington, D. C. today for a rest, dispatches from the capital said.

His nephew and secretary,
Paul Ashbrook, denied that the veteran congressman had suffered a stroke. Similar unfounded reports were circulated this summer when Ashbrook was ill
at his home in Johnstown.

He said the congressman had entered the hospital "simply for a check-up and rest."

Ashbrook was in Mansfield two weeks ago before leaving for Washington where he had been called for a special session of congress to consider revision of the neutrality act.

Hospital attaches declined to give any information on why the congressman was in the hospital.

BAIL UP $40,000

N. Y. Court Hikes Bond Leader
Kuhn's Bond to $50,000.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—On the representation of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office that "authentic information" indicated Fritz Kuhn intended to flee Dewey's jurisdiction, the German-American bond leader's bail of $5,000 was increased tenfold to $50,000 today.

The high bail was set by General Session Judge Cornelius F.
Collins after Assistant District Attorney Milton Schilback said
information reaching him was

Split Poland, Threaten Joint Military Action If Allies Won't Give In

British Empire's In Peril

By J. C. OESTREICHER
(INS Foreign Editor)

From Baffin land to Tasmania, from the furthestmost ice-locked harbor of the Canadian Arctic to the Cape of Good Hope, every community that flies the British flag
asked the same ominous question
today—

"What are the 'necessary
measures' that Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia are pledged to discuss if Great Britain and France continue the war?"

Von Ribbentrop and Molotov penned their signatures to three sheets of parchment in the Kremlin this morning, and before the wax had dried on the seals of protocol, the war that was only a war in Europe threatened to become a war of all the world.

"Guerre totale," the French called it, spurning without a moment's hesitation that Nazi-Bolshe-vist threat of limitless hostilities
if their "dynamic peace" is rejected. And "Guerre totale" it will be if the Russians and the Germans march together.

For the Soviets need not go to the west to strike at the night and power of the British empire. Their route lies southward, through Turkestan to India.

For years the British refused to believe in the admittedly fantastic concept of Nazi-Soviet collaboration, either in economic or military fields.

Now the former is an established fact and the latter at least a once-tried experiment, as today's final division of Poland testifies. When the British and the French reject the peace conference planned by Hitler and Stalin, as they doubtless will, the world will have an opportunity to see once and for all whether the two dictatorial regimes on either side of the Vistula can break the power that the British empire has known for centuries.

All the British restraint in the world can not hide the real concern that is felt over India and the possibility of a Russian invasion.

The agents of discontent have long been active in that teeming, overpopulated peninsula of untold

MOSCOW—Communist Russia and Nazi Germany
today divided Poland and joined in a peace offensive to end the European war on the basis of their frontier revisions.

At the same time, they agreed that:

1. Germany can draw on Russian resources to frustrate the Allied blockade and carry on the war.
2. Germany and Russia will consult on "necessary measures"—a threat that Russia might throw her strength on the Nazi side if Britain and France refuse to recognize the disappearance of Poland and end the war.

Coinciding with the German-Russian agreement was a Soviet agreement with Estonia that, under the name of a mutual assistance pact, provided that Russia would get the use of the Estonian islands of Dagoe and Oesel at the entrance to the Gulf of Finland, and the Estonian port of Paldiski, in the mouth of the gulf. These are highly important as naval and air bases dominating the northern Baltic area.

Although the new agreement between the Nazi and Communist states was still short of a full-fledged alliance, its implications were of tremendous military and economic importance, while the claim of providing for future consultation might mean
any degree of co-operation against Britain and France.

The new boundary drawn across Poland—with the Bug river as its main line—reduced the previously indicated Soviet sphere but

gave Russia the Lemberg (Lwow)
district and the Rumanian frontier as well as 80 per cent of the Polish oil wells.

LONDON: Britain To Reject Red Threat, Keeps Stand Intact

unit off Helgoland had been shot down by German pursuit planes.

LONDON—Great Britain will reject the Russo-German demand for an immediate peace despite an implied threat in the new Nazi-Communist agreement that unless the Allies call off the war on Germany's terms, Russia may join in against them, it was indicated today.

Two London newspapers reported that Russia and Germany would call a peace conference to which a great neutral power—presumably either Italy or the United States—would be invited.

Early but apparently reliable indications were that Great Britain not only would reject any peace offer on the basis of Poland's annihilation but would reaffirm its determination to prosecute the war until its primary aims had been achieved:
the smashing of Hitlerism and the reconstruction of the Polish state.

A peace offensive by Adolf Hitler, as soon as Poland had been destroyed, had been anticipated.
Indications seemed to be that the new threat of Russia to join Germany would be ignored—or

PARIS: French Say 'No,' Watch Germany Pour Troops To West

BULLETIN

PARIS—(U.P.)—French troops advanced about a mile along a five-mile front in the Moselle valley, an official dispatch said villages so far.

PARIS—Preparing for a gigantic double-edged military offensive the moment the Russo-German peace offensive fails, Germany today maintained a steady "big parade" of reinforcements to the westward.

Well aware that Germany is massing scores of thousands of troops to smash at both ends of the Maginot line about Oct. 10, France nevertheless quickly showed that fighting must be done on the field of battle, not around a conference table.

Anglo-French acceptance of a five-power peace conference was described in French quarters as "absolutely impossible."

In still more emphatic reply to Russo-German peace overtures, French military authorities announced new thrusts against Germany's lines in the Saar region.
Germany's forces on the western front now total fifty divisions,
amounting to about 750,000 troops,

Roosevelt Reiterates Belief of 'No War for U. S.'

DECLARES ALL MOVES AIMED TOWARD PEACE

President Says Government Drafts Plans to Curtail Rises in Food Prices.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt today reiterated his conviction that the United States will be able to stay out of the war in Europe.

Speaking at a press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said he predicated his answers to all questions on one paramount fact—that the United States is not in the war and that he does not think we are going to enter the European conflict.

The president said that the American neutrality patrol and other sources have heard reports of submarines operating in waters off our coasts. These reports have not been verified, he said.

Discussing mobilization plans of the army and navy and auxiliary plans for mobilization of America's industrial resources drafted by the war resources board, he said the war department has been drafting mobilization plans and revising them annually since 1921.

He said that the last plan he has seen was the 1936 draft. He was asked whether the latest plan would be made public. The president replied in measured phrases that we are not in the war and that he does not think we are going into the war and therefore he does not think the matter is one of public interest.

Board to Disband.

He repeated his conviction of the safety of American neutrality when asked whether the war resources board might be recalled for service in event of an emergency.

He had stated earlier this week that the board would present its report within 10 days or two weeks and then would be disbanded. He refused to say whether the board would be recalled, calling it an "iffy" question.

He was asked about the possibility that the administration has plans to control prices in the event of war. A reporter said that if the public could know these plans it might become so frightened that the knowledge would prove an effective war preventive.

There is nothing frightening about any such plans, Mr. Roosevelt replied, saying that all this talk about such plans is based on the thought of the United States going into war and the administration does not have that thought.

Of course, Mr. Roosevelt said, it is obvious that the government wants to keep prices and the cost of living from going through the roof under any circumstances and some plans have been made to that end.

GLORIFY 'UNSUNG HEROES' WHO HELP CIVILIZATION, CLUB TOLD

History's unsung heroes whose contribution, he said, were greater to civilization than those of its military heroes, were eulogized yesterday by Noel R. Mitchell of Akron, division commercial supervisor for the Ohio Bell Telephone company.

Speaking before the Kiwanis club at their luncheon meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, Mitchell cited the need for stressing the history of men and women who have dedicated their lives to promoting the welfare of civilization.

"Children have always been taught to glory in the deeds of great military leaders, not always realizing that these men in a large part have been responsible for slaughtering countless innocent women and children, destroying cities, priceless treasures and removing the thin layer of culture that for 2,000 years this world has attempted to establish," he asserted.

"But what of those men and women who have served mankind in another way?" he asked. "The scientists who have made great sacrifices, even their lives to enable mankind to live a better and happier life."

Mitchell gave short biographical sketches of persons whom he said in his opinion had made valuable contributions to society and civilization. Among these men and women he included Antony Van Leeuwenhoek, Dutch microscopist; Robert Koch, German physician and bacteriologist; Robert G. Ingersoll, agnostic; Margaret Higgins Sanger, birth control advocate; Hideyo Noguchi, Japanese bacteriologist; Father Damien, Catholic priest; David Livingstone, English explorer and missionary; Laurel DeBosi, Italian poet; Jane Addams, Hull house; Florence Nightingale, famed nurse; Alexander Graham Bell, who invented the telephone.

WAR INSURANCE DOWN

NEW YORK—(AP)—Reflecting the current lull in German submarine activities, war risk insurance rates on cargoes in English and French ships traveling between American and European ports were reduced 16.6 per cent today.

Ohio resident tells how famous medicine relieved dizziness, spots before eyes, coated tongue, gas in stomach, and other troubles due to constipation.

There are thousands of people in this city not feeling as they should simply because of small, inorganic ailments that can usually be quickly and easily relieved—such ailments as upset digestion and nerves, restless sleep, dizziness, as well as backaches and so-called rheumatic aches when due to constipation quickly yield to the remarkable powers of Vendol, the great Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine now being so successfully introduced here by the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store.

One of the many Ohio people to find happy relief is Mr. Chancey Face mire of 1024 West Columbus Street, Springfield, Ohio, who says, "Ever since I became constipated long ago, it's just been one worry after another for me. Every morning, after a sleep made restless and fitful by nervousness, I'd wake up with a headache that stayed with me all day at times. My tongue was coated, I'd feel dizzy, spots floated before my eyes, and I felt that I couldn't do my work."

"I was afraid to eat any of the foods I liked best, because even carefully selected meals would distress me greatly with indigestion, sourness, gas, shortness of breath, and acid risings. Why, at times if I had been careless in what I ate, I'd be kept awake by me suffering all night long. I tried just about every medicine and treatment on the market without getting relief. But, since so many local folk praised Vendol so highly, I decided to give it a trial also."

"Vendol was what I needed. It gave the most satisfying relief from constipation, then my nerves calmed down so thoroughly that I enjoy restful sleep and know that it's really doing me some good and building my strength. Why, I feel so grand that it's like having a new lease on life. Vendol gets the complete credit for all my remarkable benefits, and I feel sure this grand medicine can help anyone willing to give it a chance."

Give this great Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine a chance to help you, too. It is cases like the above that have made Vendol's reputation, so don't delay trying it. Come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., Mansfield and let the Vendol Man explain all about it. Vendol is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Last of 250,000 Visitors Go Home After Legion Demands Strict Neutrality.

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—Chicago was returned to its citizens today as the last of some 250,000 visitors brought by the 1939 national convention of the American Legion departed for their homes, most of them not to meet again until the 1940 convention in Boston.

The four-day Chicago convention which ended yesterday proved to be one of the most important in the Legion's 21-year history. Meeting as guns boomed once again in Europe, the veterans pledged themselves in a series of historic resolutions to fight against any involvement of the United States in the new war. They demanded:

That the United States maintain strict neutrality in the European conflict.

That congress remain continuously in session to protect that neutrality.

That the nation's armed forces be expanded immediately to insure the sovereignty and integrity of the country.

On the domestic front, the Legion demanded:

That congress outlaw the Communist party, the German bund, and all similar organizations. That congress provide for the registration and identification of aliens.

That congress put an end to all immigration until unemployment in the nation has dropped to less than 1,000,000 persons.

CERTIFICATE OF COMPLIANCE

IS TIED TO THE LAMP

Why This Is Important to You

Sight saving lighting and I. E. S. Lamps came into existence together. Extraordinary public acceptance of the new type of construction followed. New standards in portable lamps were created. Why? Because, for the first time in history, the Illuminating Engineering Society, nationally recognized group of lighting experts, set up 54 specifications for an ideal lamp for seeing—as distinguished from purely decorative lamps.

Today sixty-five lamp and shade builders make these lamps in a wide variety of styles and beautiful finishes, to these 54 specifications—11 for sight saving lighting, 14 for electrical safety; and 29 for all-around mechanical excellence. Before lamps can proudly wear the initials "I. E. S." and be adorned with the Certification of Compliance, specimen lamps are checked and inspected by the Electrical Testing Laboratories, New York, to see that they ARE built in full compliance with all 54 specifications.

Marriage Meddlers By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Lillian put a question to my father, saving me the task of answering him.

"That means me, too, I take it?" she queried.

"You and Harry, also," he said, and while I started with surprise, I realized that despite her question, neither of the Underwoods had expected any other answer than the one he had just given.

My father turned to me with an apologetic little air.

"I know you will forgive me, dear, for keeping you in the dark about some details of this danger which surrounds Richard," he said.

"But you are too close to him to judge it dispassionately, and while you are vitally necessary to the solving of this problem, I have thought best to put Harry and Lillian in direct charge of it."

"I prefer it that way," I said, speaking with difficulty. "But—is he in any special danger?"

"We are all in danger, all the time," my father said gravely. "But there is nothing new concerning Richard, and I am sure that you three can handle it. I also am sure that everything will be cleared up very soon. What I want to know now is how soon you can go back to New York."

"At any hour," I answered, for he was looking at me. "I have to telephone Philip Veritzen about the cast of players coming to the farm house, and I want to give Mary a few final directions concerning her lines. But those things will take only a few minutes each."

"Good," my father commended. "And you people?" He turned to Lillian and Harry.

"We can be ready in five minutes," Lillian said.

"That ought to do," he said. "Now, as to Mr. Veritzen: Is he to come during your absence?"

"I already have told him that Mary will not rehearse with the company except when I am present," I said.

"You are wise," he commended. "Tell him that you probably will be back here in three days."

"Three days!" I repeated, thrilling with mingled relief and fear.

"I don't think you will have to stay longer," he said. "And I would like you to start as soon as possible, not within the hour, for you have not yet had luncheon, but as soon afterward as is convenient. And now, if you'll call Miss Whitlock back. I think I'll rest a bit. Harry, after luncheon, I want to see you for a few minutes, and Margaret, will you and Lillian drop in to say goodbye to me before you go?"

"Of course," we said together, and then, as he stretched out a hand to me, I bent over him with a tender kiss and embrace. Then

"Goodbye," we said together, and then, as he stretched out a hand to me, I bent over him with a tender kiss and embrace. Then

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY
Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOOTING AT THE TOP

YOU JUST can't keep some brilliant players from shooting for a top whenever they see a possible chance for one. There is something constitutional about them that seems to make them that way. Nobody can deny, however, that fellows of this type—and girls of this kind, too, of course—get more fun out of their bridge than those who affect conservatism and constantly play their cards "close to the chest." The adventurers get thrills which the unimaginative and non-daring ones can never feel.

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

Everybody present is on the qui vive when one of the quartet is a player like Morgan Howard, formerly of New York and California, but now Pittsburgh, and everybody gets more excitement of the type indicated by this deal in the Mid-Western tournament at Cedar Point, Ohio.

Mr. Morgan's bid 1-Spade in the North, his partner 2-Clubs, and then he bid 2-Hearts, to discommodate the defense. When South then called 3-Spades, he asked for aces with the Blackwood 4-No Trumps. South showed two with 5-Hearts, whereupon he asked for kings with 5-No Trumps, South revealing one with 6 Diamonds.

Mr. Morgan thereupon bid 6-Spades. Making this gave him a top, because others preferred the safer clubs.

East led the spade 9, whereupon Mr. Morgan ran ten successive tricks in the black suits. He next offered the heart 4, which West won with the A, being end-played and having to lead into the combination tenace in diamonds. Of course West could have set the contract by discarding his heart A, so that East could have won the heart lead and come through the diamonds; but Mr. Howard's opponents just don't seem to do such things to him, nor do they as a rule to any daring players.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

How should South play for 4-Clubs against a lead of the heart J?

OBLIGATE ONE.

Mrs. Helen Moran was obligated last night at the meeting of the Pocahontas lodge which was attended by 45 members at the Eagle hall. Mrs. Martha Reichert was in charge of the meeting during which it was decided that members would attend and participate in the district school of instruction which will be held Oct. 12 at Columbus. The next regular meeting will be Oct. 26.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Sept. 30.

A fairly deep-seated and drastic upheaval may mark this day, judging by the lunar aspects. There may be a tendency to rush recklessly into some untried situation, which would but heighten the disastrous culmination of the matter. If such energy and indomitable will were directed toward the breaking-up of a crystallized or stagnant state of affairs, there would be more advantage in the effort. This is shown by a friendly Jupiter force—expansive, warming, progressive and promising. Grasp it.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves suddenly precipitated into a muddle of fruitless circumstances which are exaggerated by impetuosity and strife. With the enterprise and aggressiveness directed to breaking up static and frustrating situations, there might be much progress, especially through the friendly support of a powerful and generous friend.

A child born on this day may be energetic, bold, industrious and capable, with much practical, constructive ability. But it may become impulsive and wayward unless given early training and discipline.

Miss Eileen Walsh, John H. Miner To Marry Oct. 10; Mary Lou Elsass, Mrs. Carl Stehle Feted At Parties

Couple Will Exchange Vows at St. Peter's Next Month.

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Eileen Walsh, 26 Bradford avenue, daughter of John Walsh, Marietta, was told last night when the mother and sister of the bridegroom-elect entertained with a kitchen shower. Hostesses were Mrs. H. W. Miner, 147 West Fifth street, and Mrs. George Moyer, Jr.

Games were played during the evening with prizes going to Mrs. R. B. Boyer, Miss Walsh, and Miss Helen Fisher. Refreshments were served at a long table centered with garden flowers, and laid with green and cream appointments. A gift of China was presented by the hostesses.

Miss Walsh attended St. Peter's school, and finished her education in Marietta after moving there 10 years ago. She is now employed at the Beauty Center, John H. Miner, her fiancé, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Miner. The pair will be married Oct. 10 at St. Peter's Catholic church at 9:30 a. m.

Mr. Miner attended the school at Toronto, O., and is employed here as traffic manager for the George Alger Trucking company of Detroit. An all white shower was given at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night in honor of Miss Mary Lou Elsass who will become the bride of James Ford Oct. 15. Hostesses were the Misses Lillian Wilging and Elizabeth Snyder, and Mrs.

VIRGINIA GLESSNER, DUDLEY THOMAS WED

Quiet Ceremony Performed This Morning By Rev. Hayes M. Braker at Church; Couple Will Live In Mansfield.

MISS VIRGINIA MARGUERITE GLESSNER became the bride of Dudley West Thomas in a quiet ceremony at 11:30 this morning before the altar of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Rev. Hayes M. Braker performed the single ring service.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Glessner, 37 Highland avenue, was attired in a fuchsia wool costume suit with a black seal jacket and black accessories for her wedding. Her shoulder corsage was made from gardenias and lilies-of-the-valley.

Miss Mary Kay Glessner was her sister's only attendant. She wore a light blue wool suit with black accessories and a shoulder corsage of Happy Days roses for the occasion. James Seymour served as Mr. Thomas' best man.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple left for a short motor trip. Upon their return to Mansfield, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will reside temporarily with the bride's parents. Mrs. Thomas, who is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, is employed at the Lincoln Mutual Indemnity company.

Mr. Thomas, who has been making his home at 511 South Main street, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Thomas of Cleveland. He also attended Mansfield Senior high school and is now employed at the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

MANY Mansfield students are making their debuts on college campuses throughout the country this fall, and I'll wager they've all been pretty busy during these opening weeks of school looking over the fraternities and sororities at their respective alma maters.

Two weeks of rushing have just been concluded at Denison university in Granville, and this morning's mail brought word of the pledging of several Mansfielders there. . . . Mariann Stander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl H. Stander, transferred to the school from Fairmont Junior college in Washington, D. C., and is now affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. . . . Barbara Brunner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Brunner, is a freshman at the university and has pledged Delta Gamma sorority. . . . The campus fraternities have also gained some new members from our town—Lambda Chi Alpha has pledged both Walter Lake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Lake, and Willis Wygant, son of Dr. and Mrs. Willis E. Wygant.

While we're on the subject of college students, Virginia Rupp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Rupp, has enrolled as a freshman at Flora Stone Mather college of Western Reserve university in Cleveland—and she's living in the new dormitory, University House, which has just been opened this semester by the college. . . . Down in southern Ohio are Tom Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Scott, and Jack Lyons, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lyons, who are both freshmen at Ohio university in Athens.

NOW that the weather is so ideal, we're probably all pretty envious of those folks who have saved their vacations until late autumn. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Howard Yarnell are planning to spend these next three days "doing" Chicago—and while there, they'll visit with two former Mansfield young women and their husbands—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Graham (she was Winifred Seneff before her marriage last winter) and Mr. and Mrs. John K. Chatlain (she, you'll recall, was Josephine Henness before her wedding just a week ago). . . . While they're in the Windy City, the Yarnells' baby daughter, Sally Jo, will "board out" with Dr. and Mrs. Riley Frush at their new home in Lexington. . . . The Yarnells are coming back for her early next week, however, and then the three of them are going to travel southward for awhile—hoping to visit some more former Mansfielders. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roberts, in Wheeling, West Virginia.

The full harvest moon and almost balmy breezes last night were conducive to a number of hay rides. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ludlow Washburn gave a steak roast at Mr. and Mrs. S. Glenn Vinson's picnic house, and then the group of 12 guests went for a hay ride over the bridge paths on the Vinson estate. . . . Gamma chapter of the Gamma Gamma Gamma sorority entertained the other three chapters with a hay ride and wiener roast at Mrs. Jack McKnight's father's farm near Lexington. It was all set to be an old-fashioned hay ride too, but when the 30 guests arrived at the farm, Mrs. McKnight discovered (much to her dismay) that the men who were to drive the horses expected the group some three hours earlier and so had turned the team out to pasture! But not to be daunted by this, Mrs. McKnight decided to streamline the hay ride—so she hitched the tractor to the hay rack and drove it herself—jogging the party of 30 down the winding country roads!

WHEN you hear this, you'll probably be as surprised as I was this morning when I answered the phone to hear Ruth Dunham's voice. . . . She's back in town following a serious operation on her back in Cleveland this summer. . . . She spent much of a long recuperation period in Bay Village, and although she's not yet fully recovered, she has resumed her teaching activities at Senior high school.

FROM MY NOTEBOOK: Mr. and Mrs. John Longsdorf left for Glen St. Mary, Fla., this week to make their home. . . . Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Ford are stopping at the Hotel Commodore while vacationing in New York City. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Eli Teeter and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Robinson left yesterday for a motor trip to Washington, D. C., and over the Skyline drive in Virginia.

FARMERS AWAIT MUCH NEEDED RAINY SEASON

Hope to Revive Pastures Badly Damaged by Drought During Year's Hottest Month.

Showers are due to end a second September heat wave and bring further relief from the drought in the Mansfield area tonight or Saturday, the weatherman said today.

Much cooler weather will accompany the rain which is expected to improve pastures and replenish farm water supplies, the forecast said.

The new heat wave, which brought record readings to a number of Ohio points yesterday, helped to make September one of the warmest autumn months on record. Temperatures during the month which ends tomorrow ranged from 96 degrees, a record high for the season, to 37 degrees, lowest since last spring.

Mercury Hits 83. Yesterday the mercury climbed to 83 degrees in Mansfield, unusually high for late September, and the day's average was 74, nearly 16 degrees above normal.

The mercury rose to 92 degrees in Cincinnati yesterday for the hottest Sept. 28 on record. It was the warmest autumn day since Oct. 2, 1919, when 90 was recorded.

Higher milk prices were forecast today for Richland county if the drought continues. Milk production is down, due to the lack of green feed, and a combination of the drought and European war has increased the price of dairy feed, County Agent George B. Ganyard pointed out.

ACT ON BILLS

City and Physicians Confer on Care of Indigents.

In an effort to reduce the city's hospital bills for the care of indigents, city officials were to meet this afternoon with General hospital staff physicians and Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, to discuss revision of the city's medical service program.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter said the meeting had been called for 4 p. m. in his office and would include physicians, health authorities, council's finance committee and Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist.

The mayor said some means would be sought whereby the city can reduce its hospital bills for indigent patients which in the past two years has been running above the annual appropriations.

It is known that some members of council favor a plan of hiring a city physician to care for the indigent patients.

KEEP BIG LEAD

'Isolationists' Still Hold 4 to 1 Advantage in Poll.

Advocates of the present neutrality bill continued to hold their big lead over those who favor its repeal for the cash-and-carry plan, in today's results of the News-Journal's poll.

The "isolationists" moved up one per cent after today's vote had been checked. Their vote is 79 per cent of the total while 21 per cent are in favor of lifting the arms embargo.

Of today's vote of 68, there were 60 for the present law and 8 for its repeal.

It brings the total vote in the neutrality poll to 774, with 608 lined up with the embargo advocates and 166 for the president's plan of cash-and-carry.

A ballot on page 7 of today's paper may be used to express your views on this question.

Police Pension Board Holds Reorganization Session.

The police pension board completed its reorganization last night by re-electing two citizen's representatives to the board and re-electing officers for the coming year.

Renamed to the board were Earl K. Troll, 91 Stewart avenue, and Roy A. Isch, 31 Fair street. They will serve with Councilmen George C. Kyle and Arthur L. Crook and the police representatives Capt. John Miller and Lieut. Bruce Friday.

The board re-elected Capt. Miller, president and Troll secretary. Following the election, the board approved an application for pension submitted by William Kneeland who resigned as patrolman two weeks ago because of illness. He was allowed full disability of $100 per month.

Lead Embargo Repeal Fight

Here are the two leaders in the senate fight against repeal of the arms embargo provisions of the neutrality act. They are Senators Hiram Johnson of California, left, and William E. Borah, of Idaho. Embraced among the presidential discretionary powers is authority to permit for 90 days, without renewals, ordinary commercial credits in transactions with belligerent nations. Senator Borah's comment on this was, "it's a fraud."

NEW CRITICISM ON NEUTRALITY

More Opposition Crops Out as Senate Gets Ready to Debate Legislation.

Taft also criticized provisions which would prevent American vessels from carrying cargoes or passengers to such territories of belligerents as New Zealand and Australia.

"I think the law should declare a general war zone around Europe," he said, "and should permit free operation of American shipping in other areas."

Colorado's two Democratic senators—Adams and Johnson—voiced disapproval of some of the bill's provisions. Both have supported the principle of arms embargo repeal.

SPIES AT WORK?

3 Steamers Sunk, Norway Keeps Watch of Harbors.

OSLO, Norway—(AP)—A spy scare swept Norway today as three Norwegian steamships, first of the war, were sunk—two by German submarines, the third by a mine.

The steamship Takstaas, 1,830 tons, and Jern, were torpedoed in the North Sea. The Solas, 1,638 tons, was sunk by a mine in the Skagerak, entrance to the Baltic.

These sinkings, and the sinking of the Swedish steamship yesterday, caused belief that spies were operating in Scandinavian ports and informing the German admiralty of ship movements.

Admits Helping to Spend Stolen Money, Denies Robbery.

A 23-year-old former Mansfield reformatory inmate was held in the county jail today in connection with the robbery of the Herbert Zimmerman store in Roseland last July 30.

Deputies said a breaking and entering charge probably would be filed against the youth today. He was paroled from the reformatory about 18 months ago after serving a term for burglarizing the Hayesville post office.

6 GIVEN 90-DAY APPOINTMENTS TO CITY POSTS

Office Workers Named to Jobs They Now Hold as Civil Service Is Extended.

Six city employees who were among the 15 persons whose names were certified to Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist by the civil service commission, were given 90-day probationary appointments today to the positions they now hold.

They are office workers in the water, sewer and garbage departments who were appointed in January, 1938, by Mayor Claude M. Hunter when he took office.

The action is another move by the civil service commission to place practically all appointive municipal positions under the merit rating system. Laborers in various city departments were placed under the merit rating system previously.

Those notified of their appointment today by Nist were Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewer and garbage departments; Mrs. Mary Diebler, stenographer-clerk in the water department; Miss Mary Jane Bellare, class "B" bookkeeper in the garbage department; C. O. Anglin, class "A" bookkeeper in the water department; Joseph C. Ziegler, class "A" bookkeeper in the sewer department; and Alfred R. Lommatzsch, meter reader.

High in Tests. Anglin, Ziegler and Lommatzsch were high among those certified for their respective positions. Mrs. Diebler ranked first among those certified for both the position of stenographer-clerk and the position of secretary of the water, sewer and garbage departments.

Lingafelter, third on the certified list was appointed over Mrs. Diebler and Ralph A. Hughes, former secretary of the water, sewer and garbage department, who was second on the list by virtue of 20 per cent added to his grade for military service.

Miss Bellare, second among those certified for her position, was named over Miss Mary Hughes, who held the position of stenographer-clerk in the water department under the administration of former Mayor Earl A. McFarland.

How to get more miles per gallon

Pure Oil's New Solvenized* Tune-up Plan delivers up to 3 more miles per gallon—report motorists in 25 states . . .

EXCESS CARBON CLUTTERS UP MOTORS.

It cuts down miles per gallon, wastes oil, makes sweet performance sour and starts those aggravating little knocks that sound like sleighbells. Here's the proved plan to get rid of excess carbon—and the follow-up to help you keep rid of it.

Motorists in 25 states who are using the plan report as much as three more miles per gallon, less oil consumption, and better performance.

Companies operating fleets of cars, trucks and taxicabs report savings as high as 7% in operating costs. Here is a typical example, as told by Carleton Shull, contract mail carrier between Milford and Angola, Ind. "I have to cover 106 miles each day. Up to July 1, my gasoline consumption averaged 10-10½ gallons per day. On July 1, I started using the new Solvenized gasoline. Since then my daily tickets show I am now averaging only 8½ gallons per day, a saving of at least 1½ gallons. Figure how many gallons this is over the year. Thanks to Pure Oil for developing this product!"

You, too, can enjoy similar results. The two simple steps are shown at the right. Start them today.

Step 1 Solvenized Tune-Up Treatment

What it is: Pureol, a new chemical combination (pat. applied for) is injected into your motor. What it does: purges motors of excess carbon . . . increases gasoline mileage . . . reduces oil consumption . . . may uncover hidden defects needing mechanical attention . . . steps up performance in mechanically sound motors. Takes only 30 minutes.

Costs only $1

Step 2 Solvenized Tune-Up Gasoline

Continue benefits of Treatment as you drive with a regular diet of Solvenized Pure-Pep Gasoline . . . Contains same solvent used in Treatment . . . helps reduce further carbon formation . . . has cleansing and lubricating effect on valves, pistons and rings . . . REDS, GERMANS DEMAND PEACE OR WAR TO END

2 Nations Sign Accord, Split Poland, Threaten to Join Military Forces.

The pact in two days of almost uninterrupted parleys, received the Italian ambassador, Augusto Rosso, before departing by airplane for Berlin.

Officials said that the new agreement pledged Russia to adjust its economic system to supply raw materials in exchange for German manufacturers and to increase the trade turnover between the two countries to a new high. The peak year in the past was 1931—before the Hitler regime—when the turnover was about $440,000,000. It was believed that the annual trade turnover provided in the German-Russian pact signed last night might be increased almost 10-fold.

Premier-Foreign, Commissar Viacheslav Molotov and the German foreign minister reached the agreements in an all night conference which started shortly after midnight.

Shortly after the meeting started, Russia announced the conclusion of the treaty of "mutual assistance" with Estonia, under which Russia gets the use of the Estonian islands, Dagoe and Oesel. The fruits of the Russian-German agreement were:

1.—The signature by Molotov and Ribbentrop of a treaty of amity in which the frontiers of Russia and Germany—in what a month ago was Poland—were fixed.

2.—A joint declaration by Molotov and Ribbentrop announcing that peace would be sought, with the aid of friendly nations, on the basis of the present status, and that if Britain and France refused, and thereby "assumed responsibility," Russia and Germany would consult on measures to be taken then.

3.—An exchange of letters between Molotov and Ribbentrop on economic questions, providing that Russia would send Germany raw materials in exchange for industrial products.

On its very face, the agreement was one of the most important in modern times between two nations or even a group of nations.

A little over one month ago British and French political and military envoys were in Moscow seeking to bring Russia into their anti-Hitler bloc. On Aug. 19, Russia and Germany signed a trade and credit agreement. The Russian-Allied negotiations continued. Four days later on Aug. 23, Ribbentrop went to Moscow and negotiated a Russian-German non-aggression pact. The allied missions left for home. On Sept. 1, four weeks ago today, Hitler invaded Poland. On Sept. 17 the Russian army poured over Poland's frontier.

Now had come an agreement between the two greatest militaristic powers in the world, their frontiers newly joined, their philosophies on paper as wide apart as ever, to be friendly neighbors for good and to put up to Great Britain and France, this proposal: Peace as we want it—or else.

The Russian and German chief negotiators agreed on the new Russo-German frontier through what had been Poland as follows:

The frontier begins at the southerly point of Lithuania and runs in a general westerly direction toward a point north of Augustow up to the frontier of east Prussia and follows the east Prussian frontier to the river Pisia.

From that point it follows the river Pisia to Ostrolenka. Then it runs in a southerly direction until it meets the river Bug at Nur. Then it continues along the Bug to Krystonopol and then turns west and runs north of Rawa Ruska and Lubaczow to the river San, whence it follows the San to its source.

(The final Polish partition gave Germany a far greater share than it had been estimated she would get. The Bug river, instead of the Vistula, became the main dividing line. Instead of cutting Warsaw, the line passed a little to the west of Brest-Litovsk, 130 miles east of Warsaw.

(It came within 60 miles of Warsaw on the northeast, then turned abruptly east. Germany got Danzig, the Corridor, industrial Silesia, Warsaw and all of central Poland, much of Galicia in the south, the cities of Lodz, Posen, Cracow. Russia got Vilna in the north, Bialystok, Brest-Litovsk, Lemberg (Lvov) and the Polish Ukraine, and the Przemysl marshes.

NAZIS HEAR 'SECRET'
BERLIN, (AP)—The German radio today broadcast a report from Germany that the supreme allied war council will meet again on French soil tomorrow to examine the situation of Poland by the Russo-German agreement.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain will again head the British delegation, the broadcast said.

(Editor's note: Meetings of the allied war council have been cloaked in utmost secrecy, with nothing known of the movements of its members until official announcement is made long afterward.)

BRITISH KEEP STAND INTACT

London Observers Believe Red Threat, Peace Demands Will Be Rejected.

flouted—because British authorities felt:

1. That Russia was not wholeheartedly behind its implied threat.
2. That even if Stalin sincerely desired, he would be unable to aid Germany effectively either militarily or economically sufficiently to influence the course of the war greatly.

3. That neither Hitler nor Stalin trusted one another sufficiently to permit effective military co-operation.

4. That Hitler could not be too comfortable in seeing Russia standing at his back door looking into the Baltic through Estonia.

I talked the situation over with two neutral observers who lived for many years in Russia. They agreed that the Russian railroad system was so disorganized that Stalin would be unable to furnish Hitler the immense quantities of oil and raw materials needed for a long war.

They pointed out that the Russian railroads were of wider gauge than those in Germany so that everything would have to be transhipped at the frontiers.

Authorities here never considered the Russian army as potentially seriously effective at any distance outside its own frontiers.

For these and other reasons the British were not inclined to be greatly frightened. They did not believe that the Russian transports system would permit Germany entirely to circumvent the British contraband control—blockade. Besides, it was doubted that with Germany lacking gold, Russia could supply the enormous quantities of goods needed by Germany in return for a "long range" delivery of German technical goods which the Russians badly require.

LAWMAKERS GUARDED
WASHINGTON—(AP)—The justice department, ready to crack down on agents of foreign countries, sent six G-men to the capitol today to guard legislators against possible incidents resulting from the debate on neutrality.

Thousands Still Without New Drivers' Licenses.

With the deadline for present operators' licenses only a little more than 24 hours away, thousands of Mansfield drivers were still without their new certificates today.

Up until this morning, 10,717 licenses had been issued at the Richland County Auto club offices as compared with 9,033 sold on this date last year. However, the total number of licenses issued here during the past year exceeded 19,000.

Approximately 1,600 drivers got their new licenses yesterday. Fifteen clerks were kept busy throughout the day.

The auto club offices will be open until 8 p. m. today and tomorrow. The present licenses expire at midnight tomorrow.

KREMLIN PACT PUTS SHADOW ON EMPIRE SUN

Britain Now Concerned Over Possible Russian Drive Against Rich India.

wealth and unspeakable poverty. Britain has never really won the war that has raged for decades on the northwest frontier.

Logical military strategy would carry the Russians down through Turkestan into Afghanistan. The going might be easier through western China, so openly friendly toward the Soviets, but the Himalayas are an impassable barricade. It is inevitable that if the Russians do drive in India to help Hitler in his plan to destroy the British, they will strike through Afghanistan and the mountain passes on the northwest frontier.

The chances at present are a hundred to one that the Afghans will oblige with at least a benevolent neutrality. For the Afghans hate the British and Afghan graves are filled with the bones of swarthy warriors felled by bombs dropped from Royal air force planes.

The British have crack armies in India, but numerically the trained men are insignificant in comparison with the Soviet horde. A division of British forces to protect India would weaken the western defenses suicidally. It is within the scope of possibility if not probability to see England faced within a few weeks or months the alternative of saving herself or her empire.

For if India goes, there is little to stop the enemy from sweeping farther and farther—so far in fact that the imagination is staggered. The sun has yet to set on the British empire, but the doings in the Kremlin today threw a cloud, black and menacing, on its horizon.

Government by assassination has never been successful very long.

Those who adhere to the motto, "Let well enough alone," cannot be depended upon to do much more than keep alive.

The Dionne quintuplets can sing, according to Dr. Dafoe—and with a little training there should be a quartet, with piano accompaniment, all ready for the chautauqua circuit.

Momentous Debate Nearer

OUT of the senate foreign relations committee, approved by a vote of 16 to 7, has come the bill which would repeal the arms embargo and substitute a cash-and-carry system in the American neutrality act.

Next week, debate will start on the proposal on the floor of the senate—the most momentous debate since the one which ended with a declaration of war some 22 years ago. The battle lines have been drawn, and sides have been chosen. Opponents of the change have promised a long, hard fight to defeat the repeal of the embargo. Supporters of the measure promise to fight just as hard and just as long.

It is well that the decision will not be reached hastily—it is far too important a question for snap judgment.

The present law forbids sale of a specified list of arms, munitions and war materials to belligerents, but permits American ships to carry other supplies to warring countries.

The cash-and-carry plan forbids all American commerce with belligerents except that carried on in their ships, but permits them to come to this country and buy anything they can pay for.

Each side says the other's plan leads us on the path to war. Each side is equally sincere in wanting to keep us out of war.

It is a momentous decision to make—may calm and dispassionate judgment arrive at the best solution.

With President Roosevelt's wife and mother in agreement that he doesn't desire a third term, all that remains is for Franklin to say "Mother knows best."

Another Experiment In California

A SOCIAL-ECONOMIC experiment undertaken by Governor Olson of California is likely to attract wide attention. It is a state-sponsored co-operative, in which thousands of people now on public relief are to produce things for their own and each other's use. The state itself will finance the stores and plants required for the enterprise. The governor thinks that, while the plan will not be self-liquidating, it will enable people now drawing a dole to produce 40 or 50 per cent of their own living.

"If that's not the way out, there is no other way that I can see," he says. The philosophy of the plan is simply to make people self-supporting and get rid of the dole. Such "production for use" will be noncompetitive, he believes, not interfering with established business.

He expects to start on a small scale and add new units as rapidly as possible. They are to produce "everything in the average relief budget which can be handled economically." The state co-ops will not venture, he promises, into the field of housing or public utilities.

In preparation for two Thanksgivings, Wisconsin announces a bumper crop of strawberries.

Remember Kosciuszko

POLAND, for free-spirited people everywhere, is a symbol. Crushed to earth, it rises again. But just now, after a brief period of independent life, its spirits must be very low. It is in the mood of the old poem—

"Hope for a season bade the world farewell,
And freedom shrieked when Kosciuszko fell."

Kosciuszko, or a dozen Kosciuskos, could not save Poland from the doom brought upon her by a powerful and ruthless empire-builder. Her doom is driven still deeper by the head of a rival empire. Hitler and Stalin between them have done a thorough job.

It is for Americans, citizens of the world's greatest democracy, to keep their faith in the Poland which is now a mere ideal. If for no other reason, we would owe it to the great soldier-statesman who, a century and a half ago, helped us in our fight for independence. We should continue believing, as the stricken Poles say they believe, in their national resurrection.

Propaganda

IT IS DESIRABLE, in these changing and perilous times, to get straight in our minds various things about which our usual thinking is inclined to be a bit fuzzy. Take this matter of "propaganda" for instance. What is the nature of it, and how does it operate, and why do people yield to it?

We are referring, of course, to mischievous and alien propaganda. The word in itself may have either a good or bad significance, according to what it aims at and which side of the fence you stand on. At present, we generally use the term to signify alien efforts to corrupt our patriotism and make us believe untrue things, or things alien to our chosen way of life and our patriotic ideals.

A statement written by H. C. Peterson for the North American Newspaper Alliance may promote clear thinking in such matters. "The widely-held idea that propaganda is composed of a group of lies is a pernicious one," he says. "The individuals who entertain this idea are extremely vulnerable and become the first victims of propaganda. Effective propaganda is seldom based upon falsehood. Instead, it is a partisan interpretation of the truth—a half-truth. The element in it which is correct appeals to the person being propagandized and makes him accept the whole interpretation as the truth. In the end, of course, the sum-total of a thousand part-truths can equal nothing other than an outright lie."

So look for the devil in the woodpile.

Small Pay at Start

LOOKING over a list of successful people, it might appear that the best thing a young man could do would be to hunt for a job with low pay at the start, instead of possibly overestimating the value of his services.

Andrew Carnegie, for instance, started on a job that paid him $1.20 a week; Caruso's first work paid him only 40 cents a day, and when George Bernard Shaw was 15 years old he was working for $4.15 a month.

In looking around for a job, ambitious young people may find it more important to consider the opportunities for advancement, based on increasing ability, rather than what is earned at the start.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—As a drama or spectacle, the underworld in New York of today is played by an almost entirely different cast from that which occupied a position of prestige and power a few years ago. Its social and economic structure has become so altered that the ghost of a late Larry Fay would need a guide to distinguish who's who.

Gone are the overlords who manipulated fortunes and dealt in everything from penny ante to white slavery. Most of them have been assassinated, executed, or imprisoned, and most of those who escaped Dewey's purge have fled.

I was thinking of this the other day when a heart attack finished Big Frenchy De Mange, the old Hudson Duster, who was once kidnapped by Vincent Coll, the Mad Dog killer, and forced to ransom himself for a sum reputed to be $35,000. Frenchy simply up and died, and the phenomenon of a gangster dying in bed so fascinated the New York daily newspapers that they all gave him headlines.

TO UNDERSTAND Frenchy, his life and his times, it is necessary to have a knowledge of the Manhattan underworld during the turbulent years of prohibition.

One can not build that background in a column, or an essay, or even a book. It is too complex and diverse. There are too many important names. In a letter, such as this, one can scarcely do more than quote epitaphs from the graves of gangsters who died, almost without exception, violent deaths. And that is what made the demise of Big Frenchy an interesting news story.

He was supposed to have been allied with Gerald Chapman, who died in a hangman's noose without saying one incriminating word about his pal.

He was supposed to have been a friend of Coll's, until the Mad Dog kidnapped him and wrenched loose from him a part of his fortune. Coll was finally executed in a Twenty-third street telephone booth by gunmen imported from Detroit.

Big Frenchy also knew Lucky Luciano, now in Sing Sing, yet Lucky might be a free man today if his attitude toward women had been personal instead of commercial. The story is that once in a restaurant Luciano spat in the face of a pretty but insubstantial moth of the underworld. She never forgot it, and when Dewey finally gathered him in it was she who gave him the works.

INCIDENTALLY, Lucky Luciano's name is another indication of the underworld's talent in selecting picturesque, rhythmic appellations for themselves. Hickman Powell records that in the Dewey drive his men picked up such characters as Silver-Tongued Elsie, Abie the Rabbi, Sadie the Chink, Jennie the Factory, Crazy Moe, Cockey Flo, Good Time Charlie and Tommy Bull-Bull.

De Mange, or Big Frenchy, had a number of highly picturesque names himself, one of them being Big Polack. He got this name at the time of the stabbing of a Brooklyn gambler, for which he was indicted, but nothing happened. Although at least five murders pointed in his direction, Big Frenchy's luck never deserted him. The police were never able to pin anything on him.

"Probably," suggests one Manhattan newspaper, "not a soul will miss Frenchy. Most of the friends he had are in jail, executed, or gone on in a handsome coffin with the lilies bearing Dutch Schultz's card. And Schultz went, too—Schultz who never trusted the Frenchman or anyone else. De Mange was an old man as gangsters go—48."

THE DAILY DIGEST

Not All the Politics Was Adjourned

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Two moves by President Roosevelt effectually spiked the notion of "politics being adjourned" during the emergency. One was the president's refusal to accept Alf M. Landon's challenge that Roosevelt issue a statement saying he would not be a candidate for a third term. The other was the White House explanation of why Landon was invited to the neutrality conference at all.

Landon was invited, the White House explained, because he was the "titular head" of the Republican party, since he had been that party's last candidate for president. The explanation as to why Landon and Frank Knox, Landon's running mate in 1936, were invited came as a result of a question by newspaper men as to why Herbert C. Hoover was not invited. Coming, as it did, on the heels of the talk about politics being adjourned, this was more or less of a joke. When a government seeks to adjourn politics, of course, it always calls in the heads of the opposition. So far, so good, but Landon is NOT the head of the opposition to the New Deal, and nobody knows it better than Franklin D. Roosevelt himself.

When the war emergency came in Britain, Prime Minister Chamberlain called in Anthony Eden and Winston Churchill. Why? Because they had been the real leaders, in the minds of the British people, against the Chamberlain policies. Actually, Chamberlain did not call them into the cabinet until after he had abandoned the policy they had opposed—appeasement. He did not call them in until he was ready to follow the policies that Churchill and Eden had been advocating—war rather than mere appeasement.

Chamberlain did not call in leaders who were going to OPPOSE his new policy. He would have had to call in pacifists, who had been and still were as far on the one side of him as Eden and Churchill were on the other. Of course that would have been unthinkable when war had been decided upon. It would have been comparable to the president's calling in Senators William E. Borah, Gerald P. Nye and Arthur H. Vandenberg to the neutrality conference.

There is another difference that must be noted. Chamberlain gave Eden and Churchill important conditions: (1) Use of phenolphthalein as a cathartic for six months or more—156. (2) Use of other cathartic drugs—40. (3) Small intestinal parasites, which probably had nothing to do with the situation—73. (4) Lack of stomach secretion—95. (5) Business or family worries—80. (6) Emotional instability—480. Treatment Not Easy. Treatment, naturally, is something that is easier to describe than to carry out. How one is going to get rid of business, emotional worries or emotional instability is something I wouldn't know.

The cathartic and enema habit, however, can be reasoned out of a person. The use of a cathartic is a perfectly natural idea when discomfort in the abdomen is present. The "colitis" patient feels as if there were something in the bowel that will move on if a cathartic is taken. But the "something" is only an irritation on the inside of the bowel caused by previous cathartics. Another cathartic only makes it worse. The enema habit results in the same thing. I have seen the inside of the lower bowel of an enema addict actually covered with small spots of ulceration. It was a colitis all right, but the colitis was caused by the enemas and the only treatment is to stop them.

Mucous Colitis. Mucous colitis belongs to the same clan, and has long been considered a very intractable malady. The patient passes long strings of mucous, accompanied by spasm. There is always a nervous background for the condition, and as it seems very serious to the patient, the nervous condition is kept up and a vicious circle established. Vicious circles, indeed, are characteristic of all forms of colitis and constipation.

Treatment consists of the correction of bad habits, such as the use of water enemas, laxative and purgative drugs. The diet must be smooth, free from roughage. It should, however, be ample and contain nourishing foods, such as tomato juice, fruit juices in general. Lately a great deal of success has come from the use of apple juice. Patients should be made to understand the true nature of the condition—that it is a functional, not an organic or dangerous disease.

Cathartics Invite Colitis. —By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Editor of The News-Journal: Bear in mind that a straw vote such as yours on the neutrality issue is unscientific. You will find only a few people who will take the energy and time to write or send their vote.

Also bear in mind that our civilization consists of several very distinct classes. You will find that certain of these classes are the ones who have the energy and time to reply. They are small groups which have a great volume of "steam," but constitute a small percentage of the votes cast in a public election.

I believe in democratic capitalism as we see it now. Nevertheless I'm realistic enough to believe we can't stay out of a major war. If England for the past 150 years had not been a democratic capitalist country, neither would we be.

England acts as a buffer between the U. S. and Central Europe. If that buffer is defeated what chance does democratic capitalism have against totalitarianism?

Of the people I meet, I find 90 per cent are definitely for giving England and France some aid. There may be English propaganda going the rounds but I hear some very expressive opinions in favor of England and France. So far, I find that Germans of recent arrival are the only ones who deride our form of government and are in favor of retaining the neutrality law as it now is.

Of course, I will grant that some other person may hear different things if he congregates with a class of people different from the ones I live with.

CLARENCE W. VOGEL, Plymouth.

Daily Bible Thought

Take therefore no thought for the morrow; for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.—Matt. 6:34.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—All reports from Europe indicate that the present wartime censorship is far stricter than during the World war. This is especially true on the western front. From diplomatic dispatches not subject to censorship, however, it is now possible to draw a pretty good picture of what actually is happening on the western front.

Most important fact is that the French are moving with extreme caution and there have been no major gains. So far they have not penetrated any part of the actual Siegfried line. All of the towns and villages which the French have captured are located in a sort of no man's land between the Maginot line and the real beginning of the German fortifications.

The French have developed a heavy mountain tank which has been successful in blowing up pill-boxes. But these pill-boxes hold only machine-gun nests, and are the outposts of the Siegfried line. The heavier fortifications have not been reached.

Most of the French offensive so far has been artillery fire. Infantry has not been thrown into great action, largely because the losses from infantry charges against machine-gun nests are bound to be terrific.

And the French are not anxious to have heavy casualties reported to the civilian population behind the lines. The shock to public opinion might be disturbing.

Even so, French losses have been greater than the censored reports indicate.

French advances in the Saar, while not great, have had one important effect. They have either taken away from Germany or put out of commission a vital coal-mining and industrial area.

British Air Mystery. On the British side, most important behind-the-scenes military development is in the air force. This has been mysteriously inactive.

Reason is the disastrous result of the British air raid upon the Nazi naval station at Wilhelmshaven in the first days of the war. The censor failed to disclose that the British lost five of the 12 planes which participated in that raid. They were shot down by German anti-aircraft guns.

This is a terrifically high casualty rate, especially in a surprise bombing raid.

The 12 British planes approached Wilhelmshaven at an altitude of 6,000 feet, then dove to 800 feet to release their bombs. Ordinarily bombers count upon their diving speed of over 300 miles an hour to protect them from anti-aircraft guns. But the Nazis shot down five, an amazing record for anti-aircraft gunnery.

All this has caused the British to do no more bombing themselves until they can work out new tactics. Until they do, they cannot afford heavy air-planes losses, since Britain is far behind Germany in air strength.

Louisiana Politics. Despite all the indictments in Louisiana, plus the recent conviction of Seymour Weiss, latest reports to Washington indicate that the old political machine of Huey Long is still going strong.

As matters stand today, Huey's brother, Earl Long, will be elected governor of Louisiana next winter. Earl succeeded to the governorship following the resignation of Governor Richard ("The Lion-Hearted") Leche after revelations of extensive WPA graft.

Mayor Maestri, the backbone of the machine and close friend of Earl Long's, has remained unscathed by the investigations, which is chief reason for the continuing strength of the Huey Long gang.

As Others See It. As You May Have Noticed. No place has ever been discovered on which a cigaret fiend will not place a lighted cigaret.—Kansas City Star.

Waste of Energy. A Missouri school offers a course in falling in love. It sounds as entertaining as that government plan, to teach forestry to Oregon Indians.—Detroit News.

Leaving for College (A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

A VERY dear farmer friend of mine was on the porch of his home, with his wife and tall young son. They seemed in grave and earnest conversation. Just then the local bus came in sight. I stopped my car beside the gate and waited.

The farmer picked up two large heavy suitcases and went down the walk toward the approaching bus. His wife stood in the embrace of the son's strong arms. How tall he seemed as he looked down upon his mother's wrinkled face, wreathed in gray hair! He planted a farewell kiss upon her brow, then turned hurriedly to board the waiting bus. I saw the handclasp of the broad young hand, with the large thick fingers and the horny eager palm which his father stretched out. I heard the father's prating words, "God bless you, son," and the boy ran up the steps. He found a vacant seat at the rear where he could wave goodbye, and both his parents stood and watched the bus until it disappeared.

Then the father came to greet me. His eyes were moist and his rough lips quivered as he said, "Our boy's off for college. He's only been away six weeks once in his life before, and then he got so homesick that we had to fetch him home. He was younger then, of course."

"And of course you loved the timid rascal more because he felt that way," said I. "How long will he be gone this time?"

"Until next June," he answered, huskily. "He plans to work evenings, Saturdays and vacations, while other boys go home. I tell you he'll do it too. That boy's a worker, and he don't back down for nobody."

"What course will he take?" I wondered.

"His mom wanted him to be a missionary and I'd kinda' hoped he'd take up medicine, but about a year ago he said he was going to be a teacher—so that's why he's going to college. I believe he'll do us credit. We've tried to teach him honesty and to be kind and fair and live the Golden Rule. We believe he'll be more worth while that a-way than to get rich at the expense of other folks. I'll tell Mary you were here. She's pretty much broken up about John's going away."

2 New Concrete Bridges Built on County Roads Opened.

Two new concrete bridges on county roads, built under an emergency program, were ready for traffic today, County Engineer Howard C. Sword said. One of the structures, a 14-foot span, is on the Piper road in Madison township. It was built as a WPA project at a cost of $2,100 and replaces a bridge that was destroyed in a "flash" flood last May.

The other bridge, which is on the Franklin church road in Weller township, was built by the county. A 25-foot structure, it cost $2,000 and replaces a structure that was demolished last June when a truck crashed into it.

Both the Piper and Franklin Church roads, closed since the old bridges were demolished, have been reopened for traffic, the engineer said.

EXTRA VOTES ALLOWED
BEDFORD, Mass.—(U.P.)—Ballot box stuffing and "mattress voters" were unnecessary to swing elections of the Charitable Female Society of Bedford during the early part of the 19th century. The WPA Historical Records Survey found in reports of the organization that a member was entitled to an extra vote at each meeting for each dollar paid in addition to regular 50-cent membership dues.

COMEDY PICKED AS SENIOR PLAY

"Vanity," 3-Act Production, to Be Presented by Class in November.

"Vanity," a three-act comedy by Ernest Denny, was selected today as the play to be presented by the January graduating class of Senior high school, E. L. Heasley, dramatic instructor, announced.

The play will be staged either Nov. 17 or 24, Heasley said. The production calls for a cast of 12 characters, seven girls and five boys. Tryouts will begin within the next two weeks.

The new cheering section organized this week at the school made its first public appearance at a "pep" meeting held in the high school auditorium this afternoon in preparation for the Cambridge-Mansfield football game tomorrow at Cambridge.

The section was seated in the center of the auditorium and led the student body in school yells and songs. The meeting was in charge of the school's eight cheerleaders.

At a meeting of the 11-A class, Miss Marjorie Campbell, art instructor, was elected adviser of the class. Richard Sparks, class president, presided at the meeting.

A stamp auction will feature a meeting of the school Stamp club Monday. Ed Arndt, president, will be in charge. The club will hold its meetings every other Monday after school.

CHAPTER XVII

Stone paused to look at the key that Elkanah, Hetty's husband, had described. It was an antique, without beauty or grace, but suggestive of a strong lock turned by a strong hand. It had no particular interest for the detective, but he thought it would be most convenient thing to lend to a friend in order that he might make a secret entry. And surely that lock, with its curious wards, would open to no other key. Inside, they all stood looking at Hetty's bed.

"Who turned down the bed, and laid out Mr. Madison's night clothes?" Stone asked, "Hetty?"

"No," Cornelia replied, "Elkanah. He was Hetty's right hand man."

"On which side did he sleep, do you know?" Stone asked, after a look at the pillows.

Stone noticed how easily a man coming in at the hall door, and finding Madison asleep on his left side, and therefore with his back ready to the intruder, could commit his dreadful deed carefully and quickly.

Craig said, with a sudden recollection, "Do you know, Mr. Stone, I read a book once, a detective story, and the crime was committed in similar fashion."

"It is not unknown," said Stone, "but it is a method seldom used. It is painless and very sure."

"It is too horrible to think of," Cornelia said, "but I am thankful it was a painless death."

"Come, Avis," Craig said, "let us go out for a few moments of fresh air. We are of no help here, eh, Mr. Stone?"

"No, run along, Miss Madison, will you stay just a few moments to help me with your knowledge?"

"Of course. Change your frock, Avis. Put on something less black, please do."

Avis promised, and went away with Craig.

Fleming Stone was in his element. Many a time he had discovered an entrance to an allegedly unenterable room, and now he had a chance to do it again.

So absorbed was he, he almost forgot Cornelia's presence.

There was the door from the hall, the proper and legitimate entrance, there were three windows, two giving on the front and one at the side looking east. All of these were fastened immovably.

"Shall we close these windows?" Stone said, "The air is cold today."

.....

The body of Harley Madison had been removed at the orders of the Examiner, and had been taken to the morgue for an autopsy.

The bed had been made up and the room tidied, and Hetty had put a vase of flowers on the bedside table.

Cornelia sank down in a great easy chair, and let herself relax a little.

"Yes," she said, "do close the windows, please."

"This is a beautiful room, though not in the modern style of furnishings. It is just as it was when Mrs. Madison was here."

"Yes. My brother wanted nothing changed."

"You approved of the marriage?"

"I was very happy about it. For years my prime object in life has been to see my brother happy, and I have done everything I could for him."

"Knowing the plans of this house, as you do, tell me if you can conceive of any way the criminal could have got into this room."

"There is no way way. After my brother locked his door into the hall, nobody could come in here, by any possibility."

"Why are you so sure?"

"Because I know so well how the house is built. And you know yourself, there is no way an intruder could enter. Not by a window. That proves itself. The hall door is out of the question. Those three doors in the next wall open into a bathroom and two closets. There remains but this door in the same wall as the hall door."

"And does that door open into the hall?"

"Oh, no. It would do so, but the end of the hall was cut off to make a room, as you see."

Cornelia went to the door and opened it, disclosing an attractive room, like a small sitting-room.

"This was Harley's wife's room, but after her death, he had it made into a pleasant little place to read or write, both for the family and guests."

"This is the door with the odd bolt, will you explain it?"

"There's little to explain. My brother disliked people coming in to his room at any time. So he had the regular knob taken off that door and substituted that spring bolt, which can be drawn from his room, but not from this little sitting-room. As you see, there is no knob, lock or handle of any sort on the sitting-room side. That must show you positively that the intruder could not have come in that way."

Stone tried the door several times. He could easily pull back the bolt, go through the doorway, and watch the door swing slowly shut behind him. Then he would tap on the door, and Cornelia would admit him.

"For what purpose did your brother use this door?" he said.

"None at all in the fall and winter. In the summer he used to prop it open with a doorstop, because its very large window brought a cooling breeze through to his bedroom. Whereas, if he opened his own windows wide, the breeze was too strong for him, and brought on his laryngitis."

"This door was always closed at night, except in summer?"

"Yes. I asked Elkanah if he was sure it was bolted last night, and he was very certain that it was."

"Then, Miss Cornelia, I shall have to agree that I am confronted by the problem of the locked room. If I do not solve it, it will be the first one of its kind to elude me."

Later on he asked, "Shall you remain in this house, Miss Cornelia?"

"I don't know yet. I've had no chance to consult with Craig and Tom. I shall agree to whatever they want. If they should prefer to stay here, I will be glad to keep house for them and if not, if they prefer to go to New York or elsewhere, I shall agree to whatever plans they make. I have a notion that they will like me to remain here and keep the house open, and let them free to come and go as they wish. Of course, my brother told me about his engagement to Miss Verne, before he announced it to the others, and he wanted me to stay here and superintend the house as I have been doing. That plan suited me, for I could look after the comfort of the pair far better than they could do it themselves. And the arrangement suited him and Miss Verne, too, so the future looked very rosy. And now,—oh, Mr. Stone, who could have killed that splendid man, and why?"

But, and I hope you see it as I do, there is only one way to look. And that is toward the men of the village, who were working with him on the improvement plans. When they first began, they were so friendly and helpful, and had only the interests of the village at heart. Later they all changed, and there were quarrels and slanders and general ill-feeling, all directed against my brother, who was the originator of the plan and who proposed to put into it more money than all the rest put together."

"And you think that in some one of these disgruntled men, the ill-feeling became magnified to the point of murder?"

"That's just what I do think. One or two of the men would be capable of such an awful thing, because of their ignorant minds, their low cunning. I hope I am not wickedly unforgiving, but if one of the lot did kill my brother, I would rejoice to know that he was punished by the hands of right and justice."

"You cannot be blamed for that feeling. But, how in the name of common sense, did that man gain entrance to this room?"

"You know that question is futile, Mr. Stone."

"Now, I am going to insist on your going for a rest, and will you please send Hetty to me here?"

"Yes, indeed. You're not suspecting her?"

"Oh, no. I'm hoping her shrewd observation can tell me of some happenings or some bits of gossip that will give me a hint. Then, I must investigate that Village Committee in earnest. You want me to find the criminal, Miss Cornelia?"

"Oh, yes, I do. I hope I'm not wickedly vindictive, as I said before, but I loved my brother so much, and I shall miss him so sadly."

THEATERS

THIS and That: Brenda Joyce, who scored so largely in "The Rains Came," is reported to be holding her new-found position in her next picture, "Here I Am a Stranger." . . . It's so confusing when producers change the working title of a picture. After columns of publicity under one name a picture is released under another, as witness "Honeymoon in Bali" which was "Are Husbands Necessary." And then there is the Bette Davis-Errol Flynn film which has had four titles already and it isn't completed yet. First is was "Queen Elizabeth" and then "Elizabeth and Essex," and later "The Lady and the Knight," and at the present time it is "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex." . . . In case you're wondering what's happened to handsome Ricardo Cortez, he's out of acting and is directing "The City" at 20th Century-Fox.

Three-Star Film.

Bette Davis and George Brent, who were together in "Dark Victory," are together again in "The Old Maid," with Miriam Hopkins as Miss Davis' sister. The screen play based on Zoe Akins' stage play and Edith Wharton's novel will be the Ohio theater attraction for the first half of the week, starting tomorrow. Miss Davis plays the title role, that of the "old maid" whose illegitimate child is raised by her sister. Brent is seen in the role of Clem Spender and Jane Bryan as the old maid's daughter.

Two-Fisted Action.

Away back in 1916 when enemy U-boats sank an old craft belonging to a tugboat captain, the irate New Englander wanted to fight the war alone—which gives you an idea of the new character Wallace Beery plays in "Thunder Afloat," opening at the Madison tomorrow. Beery hasn't had such a role since "Min and Bill" and "Tugboat Annie." Adding to the two-fisted action is Chester Morris who finds himself in position to give official orders to his erstwhile enemy, Virginia Grey is the only woman in the cast.

O'Brien to the Rescue.

George O'Brien finds something to sink his teeth into in "Racketeers of the Range" for he has an opportunity to fight a whole bunch of cattle rustlers, single-handed. The rustlers are busy again threatening the business of a dozen or more independent cattlemen. John Garfield undertakes to expose the graft and crime that goes on within the walls of "Blackwell Island" prison in the picture of that title. Rosemary Lane is the romantic interest. Both pictures are at the Majestic.

"In Old Mexico."

A number of movie reviewers have selected "In Old Mexico" as the best of the Hopalong Cassidy pictures. At any rate, whether or not the audience is "Cassidy conscious," they will find a stirring outdoor story in this picture of Hopalong riding to the aid of an old friend in Old Mexico. The Ritz also offers today and tomorrow "6,000 Enemies" with Walter Pidgeon as the district attorney who is framed and sent to prison where he is surrounded by 6,000 enemies—men and women he has sent up.

Writers Collaborate.

Some of the nation's most famous writers got their heads and typewriters together to write the Liberty Magazine story "The President Vanishes," working on an idea supplied by President Roosevelt. Henry Wilcoxon and Betty Furness are featured. "Smuggled Cargo," a story of the fruit growers of Southern California, is the second feature at the Park. A new serial, "Spider's Web," revolving around a master criminal who takes on many and varied characters as he eludes police, will be launched tomorrow, and will be shown on Saturdays only for 15 weeks.

Since men's dark-colored hose often run when laundered, they are likely to stain other clothing. So wash the hose separately, hang them up quickly and don't let them come in contact with the rest of the laundry.

CLUB TURNS 3-ACRE TRACT INTO BEAUTY SPOT, WINS STATE PRIZE
Members of the Johnny Appleseed Garden club had forgotten their back-breaking work, broken fingernails and sunburn today in their pride at receiving the Kate Myers state award for the best unfinished project of any garden club affiliated with the Ohio Federation of Garden clubs.
The award of $10, given by Mrs. Kate Myers of Ashland, was announced at the state meeting in Akron this week.
The "unfinished project" of the club is their living memorial to Johnny Appleseed in South park—a wildflower conservation program launched two years ago and which is to be carried on indefinitely.
When completed the three-acre tract at the corner of Maple and Brinkerhoff should be one of the most attractive spots in Mansfield, giving back to the city the many varieties of wildflowers which were here when Mansfield was young.
In 1938 the city turned over to the Johnny Appleseed Garden club three acres of ground in the southeast corner of South park, and members set about raising funds

State Orders Drastic Tightening of Parole Regulations

APPLICATIONS FOR RELEASE ARE FORBIDDEN

Board Action Hits at Lawyers Who Act as 'Brokers,' Get Money From Prisoners.

The state of Ohio threw up new barriers today in an effort to prevent abuses of the parole system and to safeguard prisoners and their families from "parole brokers."

The state pardon and parole commission adopted a series of new regulations, one of which forbids applications or petitions for paroles for prisoners, dispatches from Columbus said.

"The case of all inmates will automatically come before the commission as they become legally eligible for hearings as provided by law. Therefore, no petitions or applications for parole are necessary, or will be considered," said a resolution adopted by commission members.

The commission also ruled that no person may intercede for a prisoner for hire unless the commission grants the privilege upon receipt of a "typewritten application." Furthermore, all matters to be presented shall be in the form of a typewritten brief, the commission ruled. No oral arguments will be permitted.

During a formal hearing for parole no person besides the prisoner may attend. During other hearings only the witness testifying, a stenographer and counsel for the commission may be present.

No Influence For Transfer.

"No person shall be permitted for hire to make any application to this commission or perform any service for any inmate over which this commission has jurisdiction for the purpose of influencing this commission in the transfer of any inmate to the London Prison farm," a commission statement said.

"There is only a handful of lawyers in the state who have been implicated in this parole brokerage racket," asserted Emmitt E. Everett, member of the Ohio pardon and parole commission, "but they have done considerable milking of funds from prisoners and their relatives."

Everett said the new rules were aimed at attorneys who, "pretending to have advance information and 'pull,' receive money for the expressed purpose of freeing an inmate of a penal institution."

The commission yesterday granted paroles to 94 Ohio penitentiary inmates, conditionally released 20 and continued 60 cases.

Among those granted paroles were three from Richland county. They were Robert Hood, serving time for burglary, to be released Feb. 1; Boyd Warner, convicted of breaking and entering, to be released Nov. 1, and Charles Brooks, burglary, to be released Feb. 1.

UP and DOWN THE STREET

Probate Judge C. J. Anderson likes balloon ascensions—the kind that used to be the highlight of every fair and carnival—so he went to the Morrow county fair at Mt. Gilead yesterday to see one. It was the first one he had seen in 30 years, he said, and that act alone made the fair a success as far as he was concerned. Balloon ascensions, which apparently are returning in popularity, will be a feature of the Loudonville street fair next week.

Mansfielders probably have seen all they want to of the great Massillon high school football team this year, but they couldn't help but admire the unusual pictures of the players and band that appear in this week's issue of Life magazine. The two pages are in color and carry these headlines: "The Cradle of Pro Football Cheers for a Great High School Team!" And the Tysers, beaten 73 to 0 by Massillon last Saturday, believe they deserve the recognition.

When James M. Hill, president of the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, went on a hay ride last night, it rounded out about a century of transportation evolution for him—all in a period of two weeks. Two weeks ago he went to New York City on a 20th century streamline train; he returned by luxury airliner to Cleveland; last night he drove out to Glenleigh farm (the S. Glenn Vinson home) in one of the year's most luxurious cars, and then went back a century when he climbed onto a big wagon with hard steel wheel rims, and rode over unfinished trails through the woods and over dirt roads. The "good old days," he decided, are all right for friction and fun, but give him the speed and luxury of the modern age.

Keeping pupils in school causes John H. Eisman, Mansfield attendance officer, less trouble than keeping boys and girls of indigent families outfitted with shoes. Eisman said the cool weather earlier in the week already has started him on a search for shoes for pupils whose parents are unable to provide them. Shoes occasionally are donated for use by indigent pupils, but the attendance officer must solicit the welfare agencies for others. "I could easily use a dozen pairs right now to keep pupils' feet off the ground," he said.

FORGER HUNTED

2 Merchants Report to Police They Cashed Bad Checks.

Police today were asked to search for an alleged check forger after two merchants complained that they had cashed bad checks for a man answering the same description.

Howard C. Myers, manager of the Myers Farm Supply, 132 North Main street, told police yesterday that he had cashed a $15 check for a man who gave the name of William Stone. Myers said the check drawn on the Richland Trust company and bearing the signature of W. H. Leppo was returned marked "no account."

He described the man as about 35 years old, five feet eight inches tall and weighing about 165 pounds. He said he had black hair, was hatless and posed as a farmer.

A similar complaint was received from Ernest Klein, proprietor of the North Side Market, who said he cashed a check drawn on the Mansfield Savings National bank for a man who gave the name of Raymond White.

F. Orr, fourth vice president and chairman of publicity.

The members elected to the board of governors are Paul Shafer, Dr. Charles Shafer, Clarence Stuhldreher and Howard Donar.

CREW WORKING OUT WATER BILLS CUTS CONDUIT, COSTS CITY $200

A crew of men who were working out their delinquent water bills cost the city $200 yesterday.

At work repairing a service line leak on North Walnut street, they cut through a section of underground conduit and crippled part of the fire and police signal system.

The break in the conduit threw five police call boxes on the signal circuit out of service.

The accident occurred shortly before noon, James Herlihy, superintendent of the water works said, when the crew drove through the street foundation and into the conduit with an air hammer.

Herlihy said the accident occurred while Cloyd Pittman, regular water department employee in charge of the project, was supervising another project of a similar nature on North Diamond street.

Acting to prevent such a situation in the future, Herlihy said a set of maps showing the locations of underground circuits on the various streets will be turned over to his department by Adams.

He said he also gave orders that in the future all regular employees supervising repair projects remain on the job during excavation.

ATTORNEYS FOR BLACK CONSIDER THREE COURSES

Seek Way to Release Him From Order to Submit Records of Father's Estate.

Attorneys for Robert B. Black, Ohio Brass company director who was cited a week ago for contempt, said today they may ask the Ohio Supreme court to release him from an appeals court order to submit records of the estate of his father, the late Frank B. Black, for use as evidence in a mandamus suit.

Meanwhile, the taking of a deposition from Black, scheduled for this morning, was postponed until 1:30 p. m. today while attorneys conferred on procedure in the case.

Reluctant to turn records of the Black estate over to counsel for Michael Hallabrin, plaintiff in the mandamus action involving the estate, attorneys for Black said they would decide today whether to take the case to the supreme court, let Black go to jail on the contempt citation or submit the records.

Attys. Weldon and Huston of Mansfield and Luther Day of Cleveland, representing Black, and Attys. Ian B. Hart of Canton and Joseph A. Bayer, Mansfield, Hallabrin's counsel, were to confer before the scheduled taking of depositions this afternoon.

Hearing Set For Canton.

If the contempt case goes to the supreme court and bond is set immediately, Black may go free until the mandamus action is heard Oct. 5 in Canton. If he refuses to comply with the appeals court order to submit the records and the case is not taken to the supreme court, he must go to jail for contempt.

Black was cited for contempt last Friday by Atty. H. M. Rust, presiding as a notary during the taking of depositions for the mandamus hearing in Canton. He has been free under $500 bond since then, but was ordered by the appeals court Wednesday to submit the records to Rust and Hallabrin's counsel.

The records of the estate of the late Mr. Black would be used to determine the extent of Mr. Black's personal property from 1926 to 1932, the period in which Hallabrin contends certain property was not listed for taxation.

Hallabrin's mandamus action seeks an order requiring the county auditor and treasurer to assess and collect personal taxes on the Black estate for the six-year period.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Let's Boot the Bolos Out of U. S. Jobs and Let All Know Just Who They Are

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—In view of latest revelations before the Dies committee and of the Nazi-Communist alliance in Europe there is no longer any excuse, much less a reason, for the retention of Communists or Fellow-Travelers in the federal government.

Mr. Dies, in fact, says the administration has asked the Department of Justice to eliminate 2850 Communists holding government jobs, and, while the purpose is laudable, the method is bad, because, if he is correctly informed and quoted, this delousing will be done quietly, which is just the way the Bolos work in unions and government projects.

The correct way is to throw them out, not ease them out, and to sing out their names as they bounce into the gutter, so that the country can be sure that none remains, and, more important, that it is not the Bolos who are getting rid of the Americans instead.

Certainly there is no justification now—not that there ever was—for the employment in government positions of men and women who either belong to the Communist party or have declared a belief in the Soviet government as the greatest experiment ever made for human betterment, whatever the party affiliations of the latter group may be. Anyone who does or did belong to the conspiracy, or who intentionally gave aid and comfort to the enemy, must have known that this was an anti-American movement directed by a foreign dictator.

A few avowed members and double-deal tag-alongs have sadly declared their disillusionment since Hitler and Stalin became political and military allies, but they are not to be trusted, because the very fact of their having allied themselves with Moscow in the past proves that the truth is not in them.

Some fellow-travelers now profess to have been simple, sincere doves who didn't know what it was all about, but they are more to be scorned than pitied by those who had to endure their vicious slanders and dirty little parliamentary plots conducted in the guise of liberal movements. They are not harmless doves; they are just licked and whining.

Two heads of the Communist party in America—one current, the other ex-admitted to the Dies committee that this Soviet agency of their counterfeited American passports, and they personally used such forgeries in their travels. And the ex-chief, Ben Gitlow, confirmed, as an insider, the counterfeiting of American money by the Soviet government.

His later estrangement from the party has no effect on his status among Americans, for it was not any decent patriotic objection to these treacheries that caused him to leave.

The Communists didn't elect anybody, and if this is an American government it is no favor that the New Deal does to boost the Bolos out. It is just a correction of a bad mistake.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Something had better be done about this before we innocent males have nothing left to enshrine on pedestals.

I'm talking about the fall of the Movie Heroine. She isn't, as you may have noticed, all she ought to be. She isn't, not entirely anyway, that lovely goddess of beauty and sweetness and sincerity she was, unfailingly, for many thousand reels past. She certainly is no longer merely that Girl met by Boy.

She is, in short, becoming a human being—with some pretty nasty human traits, and traits that make her seem real flesh-and-blood rather than a wishful celluloid mirage.

Bette Davis probably started it—this debunking of the frail and lovely, noble frail. She sunk dramatic teeth into her Mildred—unhappy, despicable Mildred—in "Of Human Bondage." If she started it, she kept it up. Bette's "Jezebel" was a heller. And Bette's Charlotte in "The Old Maid" is not a pretty creature, but a woman with psychoses and complexions and, deep down, rather mean. Bette's Elizabeth in "Elizabeth and Essex" will be another one, you can be sure.

But look around at other sweet ones of the past.

Kay Francis in "In Name Only" is a deep-eyed vixen masking her mercenary schemes to hound poor Carole Lombard and Cary Grant. She's such a she-devil in angel's clothing that she darned near wrecks the others' lives, and the plot to boot. And who's this? Myrna Loy, no other. "The perfect wife." The smart, gay, warm and loving Mrs. Nick Charles of "The Thin Man." The girl who had said goodbye forever to the screen wickedness, to the vamps and oriental schemers she used to play before she was "discovered."

But look at Myrna now! In "The Rains Came," she's that "woman without morals," who sees her man and goes after him, who tolerates a stupid husband but doesn't let marriage annoy her too much. It's true she reforms in the end—but what an unscrupulous, unmoral dame she is before it comes.

Paulette Goddard, as a cat with some redeeming qualities, glories in the role. And Joan Crawford, who in a few assignments has gone noble on us, emerges here as the epitome of the cheap, gold-digging, ruthless and predatory female.
